

Kladis D. (2013), “Tracking Learners’ and Graduates’ Progression Paths (TRACKIT): Relevance to Bologna Process. European Higher Education Area Journal, 1:61-80.

Summary

The aim of this article is to present some aspects of the study “Tracking learners’ and graduates’ progression paths – TRACKIT”. The study aimed at providing an overview of the tracking initiatives for students and graduates in Europe, referring both to tracking of students’ progress in their studies and to tracking of graduates’ paths towards employment. The article explores more specifically the relevance of “tracking” to basic concepts of the Bologna Process and to principles of quality assurance in Europe as they appear in the European Standards and Guidelines.

Content Page

1. Introduction 62

2. Relating tracking to the European higher education agenda 62

3. A short outline of the TRACKIT project 64

4. Relating tracking to Bologna 67

4.1 Introduction 67

4.2 Tracking progress of students during their studies 67

4.2.1 Berlin Communiqué (2003) – Social dimension of the Bologna Process 67

4.2.2 Leuven Communiqué (2009) – Student-centred learning 69

4.2.3 Bucharest Communiqué (2012) – Providing quality higher education for all 69

4.3 Tracking paths of graduates to employment 70

4.4 Summarising 71

5. Relating tracking to quality assurance 72

5.1 Introduction 72

5.2 European standards and guidelines for quality assurance 73

5.2.1 Introduction 73

5.2.2 Standard 1.6: “Information systems” 73

5.2.3 Standard 1.7: “Public information” 74

5.3 Summarising 74

6. Piloting on tracking (or a short success story) 75