Summary of the research study

The aim of this study is to examine how Human Rights Education was implemented in the Pedagogical Faculties of pre- primary and primary education – in undergraduate level- in Greek universities from 1995 to 2010. Specifically, we try to find out if Human Rights Education is an academic subject in the Pedagogical Faculties. After it is found that Human Rights Education is a part of the curriculum, we will examine through triangulation how it is taken place. Firstly, we will study the principles of the curriculum then we will interview the professors and finally we will question students who attend the academic subject of Human Rights Education.
